This software based assessment system and any documentation related to it has been supplied by HPO Risk Solutions Ltd (HPORS) subject to restrictions as to their use under the these Terms of Use and, where applicable, Terms of Licence between HPORS and the Licensee. Such restrictions are imposed by HPORS as owners of all intellectual property rights therein, whether arising from patent; copyright; trade secret protection of confidential information or unregistered design rights or other proprietary rights recognised by law in any legal jurisdictions. As part of this protection, US Patent 7,383,155 refers.

The protection and restrictions outlined covers not only our software, but also the logic behind the way it is structured, which is a patented approach, regardless of the territories exploited, comprising: Processing; Data Collection; Analysis and Reporting Logic.

We remind the user that these restrictions include embargoes as follows:

A) Re-engineering any aspect or element of HPORS assessment system or use of the methodology deployed to create any other programme or product that is similar to or resembles any aspect or element of HPORS assessment system or can be seen as a competitive product, whether for commercial exploitation or use internally within a second party's organisation.

B) Allowing others to copy or take from the user's or licensee's possession, any disk, memory stick, or other medium upon which this program may be magnetically, electro-statically or otherwise imprinted or stored or any manual or documentation relating to or containing this program.

C) Displaying this program on-screen by use of de-debugging, editing, diagnostic or other such program or means for the purpose of copying any part of this program, translating it into another language or making able to be listed.

D) Erasing the on-screen copyright notice and link to this document or preventing its display or reducing its legibility or in any ways interfering with its position or prominence.

E) Using the Content Structure deployed within HPORS assessment including the way behavioural-based statements and responses are written; weighted and presented for analysis to report risk and conformance. To aid understanding this does not mean content-structured like surveys or yes/no checklists. For avoidance of doubt this does not include the baseline knowledge used within an assessment, which remains the IP of the provider of this information.

Where HPORS assessment system is used within a certification environment, formally accredited or not, HPORS approach to certification and all on and off-line documents that support this, any media, electronic or paper, in part or in whole, are also covered by the protection outlined above.

Written authorisation from HPORS or our accredited representative is required to permit any departure from these conditions whether on payment or otherwise.
